Comedy Cues

Two little girls were playing. One pretended she wanted to rent the other's playhouse.

"Have you any parents?" the playhouse-owner asked.

"Yes, two," was the reply.

"I'm so sorry," the small landlady said, "but I never rent to children with parents. They're so noisy and destructive."

A clerk in a department store was serving a customer. The manager was strolling through the aisle and overheard the clerk say, "No, madam, we haven't had any for a long time."

"Oh, yes, we have," interrupted the manager. "I'll send to the warehouse immediately and have some brought over for you."

The lady looked startled, then burst out laughing and walked out of the store. The manager reprimanded the clerk. "Never refuse anything; always send out for it."

"Well, you see," replied the clerk, "she said to me, 'We haven't had any rain lately.'"—Classmate

When her small son came in with his pants torn, the mother said, "You go take off those pants and mend them yourself." Sometime later she went in to see how he was getting along and found the pants lying on a chair unmended. The door to the basement was open though, so she called down, "Are you running around down there with your pants off?"

"No, Madam," was the dignified reply, "I'm reading the gas meter."—Ex.
